KRISTINA WONG is a nationally presented solo performer, writer, actor, educator, culture jammer, and filmmaker. Described by the East Bay Express as "brutal but hilarious... a woman who takes life's absurdities very seriously," her body of performance work includes short and full-length solo performance works, outrageous street theater stunts, plays and sketch comedy. She has been a commentator for American Public Media's Marketplace, PBS, Jezebel and Playgirl Magazine. Her work has been awarded with grants from Creative Capital, MAPFUND, Center for Cultural Innovation, PEN USA, and the National Performance Network. www.kristinawong.com

Film Screenings & Discussions:
Mon., 9/24, 4:00–6:00 pm, TAV 130
Wed., 10/3, 2:30–4:30 pm, SE2-104

After playing sold out houses from Alaska to Los Angeles, to New York City to Yale, Kristina Wong's unforgettable one woman tour de force performance is finally captured in her first ever concert film through the thoughtful direction of Michael Closson. In this hilarious and whip-smart performance, Kristina takes a surprisingly raucous approach to addressing the high rates of depression and suicide among Asian American women—she tries to single-handedly save them all with her show!
